HAD FINE SALES.

Planters Carted Thousands of Pounds of Tobacco to Town.

Sales of leaf tobacco on the Richmond market were unusually good yesterduy, following a holiday and consequent suspension of sales. The total sales for the day aggregated about 185,009 pounds. Shelburne's warehouse led with about 70.00, and Sheekoe, which had hast sale, sold 40,000. Crenshaw's followed with about 15,000, and Stonewall sold about 10,000 pounds. Sheekoe warehouse led in prices with $17.50 and an average for the entire sale exceeding 38. At Shelburne's, one 8.10 made as high as $10, and the entire sale averaged very well for the quality. As a general thing, however, only medlum grades were offered.

The outlook for sales next week is only fair, unless a moderation in temperature occurs. The present weather is too dry and harsh for handling tobacco. Enough has been stripped already to insure, fair receipts next week, unless the weather should be so severe as to make it difficult to get to market.

Prices are being well maintained, especially for the letter grades of both sun or air cured and of smoked tobacco. Sun-cured wrappers of the best grade have been made between $15 and $20. Pounds of Tobacco to Town.

ROADS BROUGHT SEVEN THOUSAND

Immense Throng Poured Into Richmond by Every Railway Line.

HUNDREDS OF CAROLINIANS

Flocked From Old North State to See Their Colors Go Down.

The railways and steamship lines brought to Richmond Thursday, in addition to regular travel, nearly or quite 7,000 people, ninety per cent, of whom came to this city to attend the Thanksgring Day foot-ball game. While no figures are afforded for those lines which needed only their security.

giving Day foot-ball game. While no ligures are afforded, for those lines which operated only their regular trains and for the steamship lines, and many came Wednesdily who are not included in the estimate given here. The number of visitors to this city Thursday make be conservatively placed at 7,000.

The Chesapeake and Ohio Rallroad hauled fully half on four trains over the Peninsula division from Norfolk, Portsmouth, Newport News, Hamptom, Old Penit, and transported fully 2,080 people. Two special trains over the James River division brought from points along the division and its branches 500 people. A local train on the Peninsula division brought 500 more, and the Charlottesville special hauled 400. The last train to arrive before the egame was a Peninsula through special, which reached the station at 1:10 P. M. All the other six arrived before that hour.

The Atlantic Coost Line brought in a total of about 1,400 on two special trains. One of these was operated from Edenion.

Another was run from Elizabeth City and points along the fine over the Suffolk and Carolina, Norfolk and Western and Coast Line. Many others came through on the regular trains from va-rious North Carolina and Virginia points. Still*They Come.

The Scabbard Air Line Rallway brought about 1,000 people, many of them coming on a big special from Raleigh and intervening points between the two capitals. Others came in on regular trains, all of which were crowded.

The Southern brought about 650 persons from Chapel Hill, Durham, Hillsbore and Oxford, while the regular trains brought many others from Charlotte, Sallsbury, Greenshore and Danville and points in

The Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac Rallway on its many trains also handled a large crowd. In fact, there were busy scenes around the rallway stations all day Thursday and far into the night, and even yesterday.

The University of Virginia eleven left yesterday via the Chesapeake and Ohio Rallway for Charlottesville. The team and conch and manager were accompanied by many friends.

The Chesapeake and Ohio Rallway management is negotiating for the addition to its rolling stock of five hundred additional gondola cars. It is expected that a contract will soon be signed the her Pressed Steel Car Company, of Pitisburg, for the five hundred cars, which are to be of fifty ton, steel, double-drop gondola pattern, similar to one thousand purchased last year. The addition of 1.550, with an aggregate carrying capacity of 75.090 tons in two years, indicates to what an extent the coal haulings of the road have increased. The five hundred additional cars will increase the carrying capacity of the road 25,000 tons. These steel gondolas coat about $1,000 cnch, the five hundred representing an outlay of half a million dollars. Besides this, the company is having twenty additional locomotives built for its use.
